1. Field of the Invention The present invention relates to an electronic control apparatus and method for an internal combustion engine and, in particular, to an electronic control apparatus and method for an internal combustion engine, which is capable of controlling an air-fuel ratio of the engine during a period in which the engine is idling.

2. Description of Related Art Conventionally, in order to reduce the amount of NOx emissions from an engine, an air-fuel ratio of a mixture is controlled to be rich during a period in which the engine is idling. This is achieved by mixing fuel and air with a rich mixture when the engine is idling. However, this control has caused a problem in that the fuel consumption is increased due to a rich mixture. In view of this, an electronic control apparatus for the engine is known in which the air-fuel ratio is adjusted according to a deviation of the engine speed from a predetermined reference value (see, for example, Japanese Unexamined Patent Publication No. HEI 6-138127). However, since the control period of the air-fuel ratio during the idling is set to an engine speed range where a satisfactory combustion of a mixture cannot be obtained, there has been a problem in that the effects of the NOx emission control are not satisfactory.

Soybeans are an important and valuable field crop. Thus, a continuing goal of soybean plant breeders is to develop stable, high yielding soybean cultivars that are agronomically sound.
