Contact@rocketleague.com Update To contact Rocket League's Support Staff: By the end of June 2019, more than 650 million copies of Rocket League had been sold, reaching a new milestone of ten million unique players that have played Rocket League over time. Since then, the Rocket League community has grown by an average of more than 15 million players a month, according to the independent SteamID community tracking service SteamCharts. Xbox Series X enhancements During E3 2019, Xbox Series X and the Xbox One X were showcased. On June 2, 2019, Microsoft announced that Rocket League would receive free enhanced Xbox Series X updates in the future. The Xbox One X enhanced game will make use of the improved processor and GPU in the console. Xbox Series X enhancements are available to all Xbox One and Xbox Series X consoles owners. The announcement of the game's Xbox Series X update was made on the Xbox website on June 2, 2019, which revealed a new feature for the game, titled "High Def", which increases the resolution to 1080p for players who own an Xbox One X and PC with an Xbox One controller and who are connected to Xbox Live on the PC. Microsoft stated that when not connected to Xbox Live on the PC, the resolution will remain at 720p. To create a "High Def" match, players must agree to the resolution via the Xbox One X controller's menu before they start a match. Release Pre-orders Pre-orders were made available starting June 1, 2019, on the website. The game's release date is set for June 22, 2019, on PlayStation 4, Windows PC and Xbox One.
