I downloaded Visual C++ 2005 from the website and started up the application. I had the message "Error while repairing. Could not download file. Restart Visual C++ to retry." I have been trying to fix this problem for 2 days now, as well as researching Google. I have done all of the suggestions, but I still get the same error message. Is there another way to fix this? Re: Need help with Visual C++ from WindowsServer 2008. Thank you for your help. I would seriously like to appologize for not returning to post a comment sooner, but I was unable to find a previous post. Unfortunately I still get the same Error message and cannot continue on with the program. Do I need to reinstall it from scratch? I tried this, however I got a message that the file could not be found. I am sorry if this is in the wrong place. Thanks for your help. Please let me know. Re: Need help with Visual C++ from WindowsServer 2008. I ran into this issue today while trying to install a C# application. And I was having a similar problem with the file path. So I searched to find a similar issue. After reading a couple of articles and checking out the forums on this site, I was able to resolve the issue. I figured it out when I was attempting to install the C# application. I discovered that I was missing a directory. I am going to explain how I was able to resolve the issue. First, I did a google search and found an article, which explained the directory that was missing. The article was at Microsoft ba244e880a
