Optical emission data of the two main magnesium boride phases, Ca(B1B2)2 and MgB2, in polycrystalline samples as well as polycrystalline samples annealed in inert atmospheres are reported. All emission bands observed in the two phases of the end member phase diagram Ca(B1B2)2-MgB2 can be unambiguously assigned to vibrational transitions of the three 2B1, two 2B2, and one 3B1 B2 modes of the [B2(Ce)]4-[B2]6 clusters embedded in the magnesium matrix. Density functional theory calculations of the vibrational spectra are performed on the basis of linear response theory taking into account the recent crystal structure information of Ca(B1B2)2 (space group P6(3)/m, number of formula units per unit cell [a]x,y,z = 10.013, 7.741, 9.896 Å) and MgB2 (space group Cmc2(1), [a]x,y,z = 3.175, 3.662, 8.876 Å).
