The highway is the only U.S. highway to cross the entire state of Michigan. In the state, it is known as East Lake Road in the southern half of the state, except for a short section in Detroit, where the highway has been upgraded to freeway standards. West Lake Road (formerly US 67 and US 12) runs along the edge of the state's western shoreline through the western part of the state. Route description US 76 crosses the Canada–US border north of Champlain. As it begins in the state, it is named East Lake Road. This name does not extend into Canada, which is only accessible by local access roads. It also does not extend west of the Ohio state line. US 12 continues west to its Michigan terminus with I-75 at Warren, and US 33 continues east through Rochester. US 76/US 12 follow the same general path as US 12 throughout the rest of the state. US 76 is co-signed with I-75 for about between exit 179 at the Warren–Dearborn city line and exit 210 at the I-94–US 131 split, completing a stretch of freeway. From there, the road is signed as US 66. History Former alignment Prior to 1945, the road, from the village of St. Clair Township in St. Clair County to the village of Huron, was part of the Lake St. Clair Highway. The road was conceived as a trucking route, and there were no more than nine automobile lanes on the entire route. In 1935, a short section of US 76 from Lake City to Huron was built and signed, running from the village of Lake City to Huron. The expressway in this section is now unsigned, and US 76 has since been relocated 570a42141b
