The present invention relates to a method for adjusting the damping of a control rocker arm of a tilt/shock absorber, the control rocker arm being actuated by a tappet actuated by a cam lobe of a piston and being displaceable in the longitudinal direction of the piston, and damping of the control rocker arm being adjusted by adjusting the contact pressure of the control rocker arm relative to the piston. The present invention also relates to a vehicle comprising a control rocker arm and a tilt/shock absorber whose damping can be adjusted by means of this method. A method and a device for adjusting the damping of a control rocker arm of a tilt/shock absorber in a vehicle are known from DE 195 43 544 A1. In the case of this known device, the control rocker arm is displaceable along the lateral piston of the tilt/shock absorber in order to adjust the control rocker arm. The control rocker arm is displaceable by means of a ball pin which is guided through a longitudinal bore in the piston. The ball pin is furthermore guided through a longitudinal bore in a tappet which engages in the ball pin and which is guided in the longitudinal direction of the piston in a recess formed in the control rocker arm. In order to adjust the position of the control rocker arm, the tappet is displaced in the longitudinal direction of the piston. The tappet is coupled with the cam lobe of the piston in such a way that it may be displaced in the longitudinal direction of the piston. The motion of the cam lobe of the piston in the direction of displacement of the tappet is transmitted through a longitudinal ball stud or one of the rollers, the motion of which is transmitted through a longitudinal ball stud onto the tappet, to the tappet. By means of this method, it is possible to change the contact pressure of the control rocker arm and the tappet relative to the cam lobe of the piston. However, the contact pressure of the control rocker arm relative to the cam
