I am having a problem where I want to get the name of other players in a discord.py. I know this is possible with the user module in python, but I'm trying to figure out if this can be done with Discord's discord.py. If anyone knows how to do this I'd greatly appreciate it. A: You can do this using discord.event.emoji.emoji_set like so: def get_other_user_name(guild, user): return discord.event.emoji_set.emoji_for_name(user, guild) This invention relates to means for holding a workpiece relative to a conveyor, and more particularly to such means as they may be utilized for holding workpieces during the manufacture thereof and such means as they may be utilized to carry workpieces along a conveyor. During the manufacture of some articles, especially those which are to have a pattern printed thereon, it is necessary that the articles remain stationary while a pattern is applied to the article, or while the article is otherwise processed. For example, in the manufacture of lawn umbrellas, it is necessary that the umbrella blades be stationary while the handle portion of the umbrella is placed around the handle and the handle is sewed together. In another example, it is necessary that the body portion of a snowmobile be stationary while the wheels are affixed thereto, and yet another example is the paper tube making process wherein it is necessary that the entire assembly consisting of the paper tube, a mandrel about which the paper tube is coiled, and the mandrel gripping means for holding the mandrel stationary during the coiling operation, remain stationary as the paper
