Basically I am trying to write a class with a data member called "valid." If I pass an invalid pointer to my method, i.e. with an address that isn't null I am supposed to get an error. But I am not getting anything when I pass an invalid value to the function. This is the method in the class: void Set_Valid (void * ptr); This is my main: void Set_Valid (void * ptr) { if (!ptr) { std::cout
