To apply DNA electrophoresis and immunoblotting in the study of detection and identification of human parvovirus B19. Sera with positive B19 IgM antibodies were screened by using indirect fluorescent antibody technique (IFA). The recombinant E strain was used as positive controls. The digested product of PCR of two hundred positive sera was analyzed by 1.2% agarose gel electrophoresis, and B19-specific PCR products of each positive serum were screened by immunoblotting with B19 derived peptides as probes. After the recombinant E strain was digested by restriction endonuclease Hind III, the size of gene-2 coding product was 189 bp, and the size of gene-3 coding product was 241 bp. The recombinant strain generated two main bands with sizes of 2.5 kb and 2.9 kb by immunoblotting. The same analysis was used in other sera with positive IgM antibodies to determine the difference. B19 specific DNA electrophoresis and immunoblotting can be used in the study of identification of B19.HR 1 for Synthetic Biology and Genetic Medicine The Humanitarian Research and Development (HRD) program of the United States Agency for International Development (USAID), Department of State (DOS), and the US Army Medical Research and Materiel Command (USAMRMC) is pleased to announce the first call for proposals under the HRD program.
