(Newser) - Surely not. The AP reports that Air Force leaders are moving forward with a plan to fly huge planes to Cuba, because a few dozen unmanned drones just won't cut it. The new force is to include 20 a/c of about 755,000 pounds, 3.5 times larger than the unmanned Predators flown by the Air Force. The Navy is to lead the experiment, and it's expected to use the first a/c to begin tests in June. And all of this is to celebrate the arrival of a new president, who—gasp—might actually allow our navy to confront the Cubans in their water. What's wrong with drones? Each one is more than $1 million, and the Pentagon admits it's losing $1 billion per year to in-air drone strikes. By contrast, the Cubans only have about $5 billion in their coffers. The only reason to have the drones is so our pilots can occasionally play Battleship.

Q: Dynamically install mod-geoip, nginx & apache2 on Centos 6 This is a combination of 3 questions I have had on my list of unanswered questions. I'm trying to install a site on centos 6 that comes pre-configured for the mod-geoip module, nginx and apache2. I'd like to not install these individually but have yum to do this. I don't know if this is possible. I found that the package `geoip-modules-1.4.1-1.el6.x86_64.rpm` is available here but when I run `yum install geoip-modules-1.4.1-1.el6.x86_64.rpm` it says it's going to install the `geoip-devel` package. I also tried this with the `geoip` modules, but when I run `yum install geoip-modules-1.4.1-1.el6.x86_64.rpm` it says it's going to install the `geoip-devel` package. The modules are the same. I tried to install the other packages from those so I could be sure it was the same packages and not the `geoip-modules` and `geoip-devel` packages having the same file name. I've included my listing of what I've been trying. `$ sudo yum install geoip-modules-1.4.1-1.`

What's New in the Photoshop 2021 (Version 22.0.0)?

Q: How to get access to a 2D array that is stored in an array? I have a method that maps a grid of values to another grid of values. The value type of the grid is complex (it's the result of some calculations) and is defined like this: `typedef struct CComplexGrid { float array; size_t sizeX; size_t sizeY; } CComplexGrid;` Now I have a set of grids to map. This is simply an array of `CComplexGrid` which I created with the following code: `static CComplexGrid complexGrid[NUMBER_OF_GRIDS];` I have an array of pointers to the grids, which I get by calling the array member of the array of grids. To make it easier to access the values I store the results in a 2D array of floats with the same dimensions as the 2D grid. I created this 2D array with the following code: `static float map[NUMBER_OF_GRIDS][GRID_WIDTH * GRID_HEIGHT];` Now the problem is that I need to access the values of the 2D array `map`. This seems not to be possible without the use of pointers, since the values I want to access are the elements in a specific row and column. An example would be the following: `float map[NUMBER_OF_GRIDS][GRID_WIDTH * GRID_HEIGHT] = {0}; for(size_t i = 0; i`
