When I first installed Firefox on my new PC, I opted for the Firefox without any search engines. I searched the web using the built-in search engine. However, I noticed that I was getting different results than the sites I knew. For example, when I searched for a particular website, the sites I knew would show up as the first choices, but the ones I was searching for would show up as the secondary choices. I used Chrome, and all the sites I was searching for would show up as the first search results. After doing some research, b7e8fdf5c8
