A: As the error means you don't have the font you are trying to use, you need to add this path to your system environment. Use the update environment settings option to see where on the computer the default font directory is located. That's probably the wrong path (again assuming you have the actual font, not a font installed in your system) in Windows you can do: Right click on the "font" folder, choose Properties and then the sub-folder tab. Choose the "LocalAppData" path. Copy the path down into a text file (optional) Add the "fonts" directory to your PATH environment variable. // Copyright 2017 Yahoo Holdings.
