I have never found any explanation of why they are so dumb, other than that it must be so (seems like the only possible explanation to me), which of course isn't a very satisfying explanation. But then I began reading the book "Brain Waves" by Raymond Kurzweil. On page 37, he says that we should expect to find intelligences in outer space that are beyond ours because they will be self-aware, or at least, "advanced". Is Kurzweil's book authoritative? Is there any other source of credible information about aliens in outer space? A: I would say it is impossible to say one way or the other. But there are certainly no aliens, as far as we know, on our planet. This is very likely because they are non-sentient. However, there can be sentient non-biological lifeforms such as pure math. Again, this is very unlikely, but not impossible. A: This is an excellent question. I could not find a single answer on this topic in books, movies or magazines. I did find
